

SERBIEN

Minister of Culture

Ministry for Culture

Nebojsa BRADIC

Born 1956 in Trstenik
He is married.

He graduated in theatre and radio directing from the Belgrade Faculty of Dramatic Arts.

From 1981 to 1996 he worked as director, art director and head of the Krusevac Theatre. In the period from 1996 to 1997 he was head of the Atelje 212 theatre. From 1997 to 1999 he was head of the Belgrade National Theatre. He has been head and art director at the Belgrade Drama Theatre since December 2000.

He has directed more than 70 theatre presentations in Serbian, Bosnian and Greek theatres, and has a special affinity to modern Serbian literature and dramatisation. He has directed operas and musicals. He is founder of the Belgrade Dance Festival. He is professor of acting at the Belgrade Academy of Fine Arts. Theatre shows by Nebojsa Bradic were performed in theatres throughout the former Yugoslavia, Italy, Austria, Hungary, England, US, the Czech Republic, Switzerland, Ukraine, Russia, Greece, Albania and Turkey.

He is the recipient of important Serbian theatre awards. He was the first winner of the Nikola Peca Petrovic Award for the best Yugoslav theatre manager. He won nine awards as director at the Joakim Vujic Theatre Festival. He received the Sterija Award for best modern theatre adaptation, dramatisation and directing.

He also received the Golden Knight Award as director. He writes essays and has published a dramatisation of the books "Prokleta Avlija" (The Damned Yard) and "Dervis i Smrt" (The Dervish and Death). He is a member of various artists' associations and expert bodies of several cultural institutions and events.