Scientific researches deal with mathematical methods of management. Doctoral dissertation investigates systems with delayed arguments. He proved theorems on necessary and sufficient conditions in such systems; in some concrete cases he solved the management optimization existence problem. He investigated maximum principle for systems of neutral type and worked out new simple methods for determination of necessary and sufficient conditions in more complicated systems. Using these methods he managed to prove some previously unproved theorems.

He is the Chairman of Specialized Council for Doctoral Dissertations on mathematics; opponent for more than 10 dissertations; member of "Baku University News" scientific journal's Chief Editorial Board (1994-1996); Editor of a number of fundamental scientific works.
