

SERBIEN

Minister of Education, Science and Technological Development

Ministry for Education, Science and Technological Development

Tomislav JOVANOVIĆ

Born in Trbunje in 1951.
He is married with one child.

He obtained a PhD title at the School of Medicine in Belgrade, where he now heads the Department of Medical Physiology.

- |            |   |
|------------|---|
| Since 1994 | Full professor at the School of Medicine, as the youngest full professor in the territory of the former state                                   |
| 2009       | Head of the Graduate Department of Cardiovascular Physiology  |
| 2006-2012  | Chair of the Department of Sport Medicine at postgraduate programme   |
| 2004       | Vice-Chancellor of the University of Pristina   |
| 2002       | Director of Graduate School of Sports Medicine of the UN ECPD University  |
| 2002-2006  | Director of the Institute of Medical Physiology, School of MedicineFounder of the International Graduate School in Baromedicine             |
| Since 1999 | He is the national coordinator for Hyperbaric Medicine and Head of the European Graduate School in Baromedicine which is supported by the EUBS. |
| 1997-1998  | Chairman of the Medical Sciences Committee of the Ministry of Science and Technology  |
| 1995-1998  | director of the Centre for Scientific Research at the Clinical Centre of Serbia   |
| 1995       | Head of the Department of Balneoclimatology on postgraduate programme at the School of Medicine in Belgrade                                     |
| 1989-2000  | Dean for postgraduate studies   |
| 1986-1989  | Dean of the Faculty of Special Education and Rehabilitation (at the Special Education School), University of Belgrade.                          |
| 1996       | Professor at the School of Medicine of the University of Pristina.  |

1995 Teaching at the Medical School of the University of Novi Sad
1986-1995 Teaching at the School of Medicine, University of Kragujevac

Member of numerous professional organisations, member and president of organisational and scientific committees of numerous international and national conferences, as well as a member of the scientific and editorial boards of several professional journals